

SCOPE AND AIMS

The scope of this Bulletin covers the wide range of applications of radioisotopes and radiation sources in physical, biological, medical and agricultural sciences and in industry.

The aims of this Bulletin are:

- 1- Provide a medium for the publication of original research work in the form of "papers" on the applications of radioisotopes and radiation sources.
- 2- Acquaint scientists with recent theories, techniques and achievements concerning relevant subjects of regional and international interests in the form of "reviews".
- 3- Publish remarks, comments or pre-publication notes in the form of "letters to the editor", "communications" or "technical notes".
- 4- Publish symposia and proceedings of regional conferences in relevant subjects in the form of "supplements" to the Bulletin.
- 5- Publish information about equipments, chemicals, scientific tools and apparatus recommended for workers in the field.